Let's meet Sir James M Barrie

Hello, I'm James Barrie!

I come from Scotland.

I'm a writer and I love writing books and plays for the theatre.

I have a big St Bernard dog called Porthos. I often take him to Kensington Gardens in London. Here I meet many children and tell them stories.

My first novel is The Little Minister (1891).

My play Peter Pan (1904) is a big success. Children and adults like this play a lot.

(Sir James M Barrie dies in London in 1937.)

J M Barrie and Great Ormond Street Hospital for Children

J M Barrie likes children very much. He wants children to be well and happy.

In London there is a hospital for sick children called Great Ormond Street Hospital for Children. Barrie often visits this hospital because he wants to help the children.

Barrie is a very generous¹ man. In 1929 he makes an important decision: Every time Peter Pan is performed in a theatre, the money from the play goes to Great Ormond Street Hospital for Children. This money helps the children, the hospital, the doctors and the nurses.

Peter Pan is performed once a year at the hospital. This is a very happy event for the sick children.

Some people say that:

- fairies are little people with wings
- they live in the forest, in trees, in flowers and in gardens
- there are good and bad fairies
- fairies are magic
- they can do good things and bad things

Fairies are part of the British, Irish, northern European, Scandinavian and old Celtic cultures. There are many stories about fairies. Some are called fairy tales.

In Peter Pan Tinker Bell is Peter's fairy. The fairies of Neverland are Peter's friends. In Pinocchio there is a kind fairy called the Blue Fairy. She always helps Pinocchio. In Cinderella a fairy godmother is Cinderella's good friend.

There are fairies in one of William Shakespeare's plays too. In A Midsummer Night's Dream Oberon and Titania are the king and queen of the fairies.

American and British children believe in the tooth fairy.

When a child's tooth falls out he/she puts it under the pillow¹ and goes to sleep. During the night the tooth fairy takes the tooth and puts money or sweets under the pillow. The next morning the child finds the surprise and is very happy.
